The boy and the dragon

One night, in a forest, a dragon finished its hunting but it found nothing. So, tired, and hungry, it went to sleep. It remembered an old story, a story about it and a little boy. It was exactly the same night. It was hungry when it saw a little boy who looked lost. Famished, it flew to him, mouth wide open. But when it saw the boy's tears, behind his sad eyes, it stopped. Jonathan was looking at the big and dark dragon. The dragon's eyes were shining like diamonds. Its hot breath arrived in his face. But he found something really beautiful in the dragon but he didn't know what.

The dragon was surprised by his silver eyes. They stood a few minutes without saying anything. The dragon went to sleep in its cavern but Jonathan who was a lost child, ran to it because he was scared by the forest shadows. The dragon was surprised but it left a space to sleep.

When the dragon woke up, it looked for Jonathan but he had left. Sad, it suddenly saw some fruits left by him. It would remember this nice boy forever.

The sound of someone shooting small rocks brought it to reality. In the day light, it saw an old man with silver eyes....