

The Boy and the Dragon

Hi, my name is Mike Delfino, I am going to tell you my story, how my life changed from a normal life to a fairy ^{tail} tale. It all started in the Kingdom of Seibia (my kingdom). One morning, I woke up, got ready for school as always and left the house and shouted "bye" to my mom. On my way to school, I saw a group of teenagers around a poster, I made my way through the crowd, I looked up and read "The man who manages to kill the dragon will marry my daughter, Princess Claire" on the poster it said that a meeting ^{would} be held the next day. I knew that I wouldn't be able to do it. After my boring day at school, I made my way back home as I walked through the door my mom straddled me by only talking about it. She was talking about the King's message all evening, so to make her shut up I accepted it. The next day, I got ready and put on my dad's old knight armor (by the way he died when I was born, he was the best knight of his times) and took my sword. When I arrived at the meeting there were a lot of other boys like me. I actually recognized Hans, the most popular boy at school and my enemy. He always wanted to be the best at everything. The King talked to us and told us the boy who would bring one of the dragon's nails in the next week will marry his daughter. After the departure ^{was} launched by the King, ~~me~~ and all the other knights went to search for the dragon. They all took the same ^{and I} direction except me who was directed towards the high mountains of the kingdom, so I was the only one to climb these mountains. I got to the top of the mountains in 3 days. When I got to the top, I saw it. He was like I ^{had} imagined him = huge, purple body, green face and scary. After looking into each other's eyes for a few seconds, we started to fight. I managed to dodge all of his blows. But to end him I absolutely had to touch his heart with my sword. So I did it. Then I cut one of his nails and walked down from the top to the King's castle. Finally I ^{home} arrived ~~there~~, the King welcomed me and I gave him the nail as a trophy. He, Princess Claire and my mom were so happy. The next day a big party with the whole kingdom (except Hans who did not accept his defeat against me) was held to celebrate my victory and the wedding of Claire and ~~I~~ ^{me}. It was the happiest day of my life.

The end